What's this all about?

The World Naked Bike Ride (WNBR) is an annual event that draws attention to the absurdity of oil dependency and celebrates the potential of cycling and the human body. The overuse of the planet's vanishing oil reserves causes pollution, global warming and leads to war, inequality and injustice. Many politicians want to subsidise the car industry and build more runways. They call such follies progress – but this is progress towards disaster.

WNBR is an international movement, with rides taking place in over 40 locations in the UK and around the world. Riding naked emphasises the vulnerability of cyclists on the road, at the same time as celebrating humanity in the face of mechanisation. If it seems a little crazy, think about the total madness of car culture and its inevitable results.

How do I join in next year?

The ride takes place every June (in northern hemisphere countries). All are welcome.

For more information on where there's a ride taking place near you, or to find out how to get involved or organise a WNBR in your town or city see the website.
